

PINCHOT ATTACKS GUGGENHEIM TO HIS FACE AT MEETING

Declares States' Rights Policy Only Stalking Horse for Conservation Opponents.

"Behind the stalking horse of States' rights there is preparing a most dangerous attack on the whole policy of conservation. It is an attack in which men of whole principle are fighting side by side with men whose principles live in their pockets, and for that reason it is doubly to be feared."

So declared Gifford Pinchot, former chief of the forestry service, before the American Forestry Association convention today in an impassioned warning against the proposed plan of ceding back to the States all forest and mineral claims now held by the Federal Government. He characterized the movement of the money interests against conservation through this new States plan to be "eager, alert, and well organized."

The convention adopted resolutions in the afternoon business meeting, favoring the continuance of the present policy of national control of forestry. Mr. Pinchot himself paid a complimentary indirectly to Secretary of the Interior Fisher and his department for present day elimination of fraud in land entries, coal and water power rights, and for safeguarding public interest in land matters.

Attacks Guggenheim. Mr. Pinchot made quite a stir when he declared in the presence of Senator Simon Guggenheim, a delegate to the convention: "The coal lands of Alaska will not fall into the hands of the Guggenheims, nor will hundreds of millions of dollars, worth of water power sites become the easy prey of the great water power combination, whose growth in the direction of a single over-mastering trust has made such progress in the last few years."

Continuing he said: "All of this work for the protection of the people's property has but a single object—use for the benefit of the people. But use by the people is sharply different from ownership by the grabbers. The grabbers are hungry, for, under the care of the Government, the people's property is mostly out of their reach. To the men whose business of grabbing has been stopped, the present situation could not well be worse. Any change must be a change for the better. To these men the States' rights cry is a tool, and nothing more. Time and again I have been intensely amused by the persistent solicitude of citizens of New York and Massachusetts to control the rights of Colorado and Idaho to control the disposition of water power within their borders should fail of due recognition. So with their ceaseless care for the rights of the honest settler, whom the Government does not protect, but whom the grabbers merely use."

Forests are Huge Prize. The national forests are worth at least two thousand millions of dollars. It is a huge prize—safe from spoliation while it remains in the hands of the nation, but possibly open if it passes to the States. We may as well call things by their right names. The bulk of the agitation for the control of natural resources by the States comes from combinations of capital whose purposes could not be achieved if they were avoided.

There are honest men, honestly mistaken, who support this movement. But the movement itself would never have reached its present importance but for one thing—the States' rights cry, which the Government in putting an end to land grabbing in most of its forms.

"From the beginning it was upon the forest service that the burden of defending the conservation policy chiefly lay. It is on the foresting line that the defeat would mean the defeat of the whole policy of conservation, and the ultimate passage of untold millions of public property into the hands of men who do not need any more of three square miles of land."

Other speakers at the luncheon this afternoon were Secretary Fisher, Charles L. Pack, and Dr. Henry S. Drinker.

PAINS FOLLOW QUARTER DINNER

Society Women Dine With Working Girls at Cost of Twenty-five Cents Each.

NEW YORK, Jan. 8.—Several slight cases of indigestion were reported today among the distinguished promoters of the Vacation Savings Fund as a result of eating a sumptuous dinner at the association's monthly meeting and entertainment.

The dinner was managed by Miss Anne Morgan, who, just to show what could be done, told her sister directors that she would get up a good dinner at 25 cents a plate. Mrs. August Belmont said it could not be done, but it was. There was soup, a chop with delicious gravy, potatoes, and two other vegetables, pie, and coffee. Miss Morgan, Mrs. Belmont, and a number of others of similar social distinction, ate the dinner from beginning to end. Several hundred girls, members of the fund, also dined and pronounced the dinner excellent.

Aviation Minister Is Germany's Plan

BERLIN, Jan. 8.—When the reichstag convened today after the Christmas holiday adjournment, it was learned that the minister of the interior is drafting an extensive aerial navigation law. The government, it was learned, is seriously considering the creation of an aerial navy ministry, and it was said that Count Zeppelin undoubtedly would be the first to hold the post.

Battle of New Orleans Fought 98 Years Ago

Today is the anniversary of the Battle of New Orleans, fought in 1815, when the British troops were defeated by the Americans led by Gen. Andrew Jackson. Gen. James Longstreet, the famous Confederate commander, was born in Edgefield District, S. C., on this date in 1821.

Robs Drug Store.

Complaint was made to the police of the Sixth precinct today that the drug store at 67 Pennsylvania avenue northwest, was entered during the night by breaking the glass in a rear window. From the cash register $8.50 was stolen, while the thief also carried away a quantity of cigarettes.

Sisters Not Twins, But Much Alike

THE MISSES ALYSE AND JULIA VON L. MEYER.

SOCIETY'S WRONG! THE VON L. MEYER GIRLS NOT TWINS

Secretary's Daughters Dress Alike Because Foreign Custom Deceives It.

No, they are not twins, though society in many instances will tell you they are. But it is only because the Misses von L. Meyer—and don't say their family name without the "von," please—the beautiful daughters of the Secretary of the Navy, dress alike at the numerous social functions they attend that the impression prevails they are twins.

Even to those who know them well the two girls, in whose ages there is a difference of several years, are thought to have lived the same number of years. And why, the loquacious society will ask, do "the von L. Meyer girls" as they are known, dress so similarly so frequently? It is because the daughters of the Secretary of the Navy are European in their tastes.

While real American girls of the same age are lovers of every outdoor sport, ardent roller and ice skaters, horsewomen and golfers, the Misses Julia and Alyse von L. Meyer have a "soft spot" in their hearts for the foreign. It is a custom in Europe for sisters to dress alike.

That is the reason so intimate friends of the young women say, that they do so. They, admiring Europeans, and among their best friends in Capital society are many members of the Diplomatic Corps.

PLUMS OF SENATE, BUT NOT CONTROL, WILL GO TO ELDERS

Democrats Plan to Let Liberal Forces Rule Committees.

ity party become, automatically, the conference for the Senate.

Change Is Important. The importance of this change would be much greater than is popularly understood, though experienced Senators realize all it means. During the many years, for example, when Mr. Hale was head of the Naval Committee, he would almost always be amiable about accepting anything that was offered in the committee or even in the Senate. An amendment went on with all ease and celerity; but when the bill went to conference, with Mr. Hale as head of the Senate conference, it was quietly dropped out if Mr. Hale didn't like it. That gave the conferees power practically to determine the final form of legislation.

Further, it is pointed out that under seniority plan of designating conferees, who take little or no interest in the work of the committees are often placed at the head of conferences of the greatest importance. This would be avoided under the proposed plan.

One more provision looking toward democratization of the Senate, which is contained in the plan, is that hereafter the chairman shall not have authority to determine when and whether a committee shall meet. That is the tacitly accepted rule now. No matter how important or pressing the business, a committee doesn't meet unless the chairman wants it to do so. It is proposed that the conferees, or members may call a committee together, without reference to the chairman's attitude.

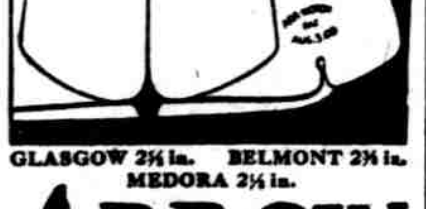

Plan "Steering" Board. Finally, it is proposed to create a legislative "steering" committee, representing the Democratic caucus and elected by it, which shall take over a large part of the functions of the leader.

To this program, according to Senators who have canvassed the situation with care, it is expected that twenty-nine of the forty-four Democrats now in the Senate will adhere. In addition, there are a number who are now classified as doubtful. Some of the men who are willing to accept the liberalization plan are commonly recognized as reservationists, but they have seen the handwriting, and are anxious, it is declared, to get into step with the tendencies of the new administration.

There is some vigorous opposition to the sweeping reorganization of the big committees, that will be necessary if they are to be placed within the voting control of the liberals. This is a very important part of the plan. At present these big committees are generally dominated by a snug majority of conservative Democrats.

Part of the consideration which the liberals propose to exact for leaving the veterans in the chairmanships, is that the body of each first rate committee shall include a majority of radical and liberal members, so that the chairman may not be able to rule absolutely. There is still an element of more radical Democrats who insist that this plan does not go far enough, and are urging that nothing less than unifying the the veterans, conservatives and the chairmanships will serve; but this is declared not to be by any means the view of the majority of the conferees.

Senators Gore and Hoke Smith have gone to Trenton to confer with President-elect Wilson concerning this plan, to inform him of details, and advise with him as to steps necessary to perfect it and secure its adoption.

ARTIFICIAL EYE IS EASILY MOVED

Boy, by Use of Gold Ball, Able to Freely Control Muscles.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 8.—His left eye replaced with a gold ball, an artificial eye, which he moves with freedom and control, little six-year-old Alexander Calievitch attracted much attention when he was exhibited at a meeting of the Ophthalmic Society by Dr. Samuel D. Risley.

The unusually successful substitution of an artificial eye was the final of a series of treatments administered by Dr. Risley since the child came under his care about three months ago. The boy was struck in the eye with a piece of wood on October 13, the doctor said, and was brought to him for treatment. In order to save the sight of the left eye and replace it with a gold ball in such a manner that the muscles of the eye are permitted to function as freely as before.

FIGHT REDUCTION FOR ELECTRICIANS AT BROOKLYN YARD

Navy Plant Employees Tell Beekman Winthrop Wages Should Stay Up.

Appealing from the recommendations of the wage board of the Brooklyn Navy Yard, that the minimum wage scale of the thousands of electricians and electrical workers employed in that big plant be reduced further, representatives of the electricians were heard by Assistant Secretary of the Navy Beekman Winthrop this afternoon. The representatives, C. N. McAndrews and William Miller, were accompanied to the Navy Department by Congressmen Calder, Fitzgerald and Maher.

The wage board has recommended that the existing minimum wage of $2.25 a day be reduced to $2.68. The representatives of the electricians asked that the maximum rate of $4.8 a day be raised to $4.95 a day; that the $4.00 class be increased to $4.45, the $3.52 class to $4.00 and the minimum class of $3.25 be increased to $3.52 a day. An increase of 24 cents a day is asked for the helpers.

Mr. Winthrop told the electricians that their demands would be considered before the recommendations of the board finally were adopted.

SHEA WELL RECEIVED IN 'JEKYLL AND HYDE'

Stevenson's Creation of Dual Character Given Merited Interpretation at Academy.

That classic drama of dual personality, "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde," which helped Mansfield up the ladder of fame and has done yeoman service in a myriad of stock companies, was the offering of Thomas E. Shea and his company at the Academy last night. His interpretation of the serene, unassuming, notable chiefly for the high lights of malignancy and Machiavellian evil reached in Hyde, won its usual acclaim for the actor from his admirers in this city, who were present in force.

Mr. Shea has no role in his repertoire so picturesque and so thrilling as that of the Stevenson creation, whose delving into chemistry caused the ruin of his career. The actor will follow up his established achievement in "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde" with his other vivid and telling portrait of Mathias in "The Belle" tomorrow evening and Thursday matinee. A special production of Marie Corelli's "The Vendetta" will be made at the Saturday matinee.
